

Posting a Team Announcement to Your Team Page

Posting a Team Announcement can be an effective way to communicate with your team, and with your parent subscribers. On an evening at home, or at your classroom on the fly, a team announcement can get a message out to your players and parents about a change in plans, a celebration of the team, or even provide you with a platform to post a write-up about your game(s).

Posting a Team Announcement to your Team Page: In your Coach Tools, select the Coach Console:

Then Select the Announcement Tab:

There are really only 2 HTML characters you need to know without getting lost in the weeds of a programming language:

NOTE: You may Type the first line in the Announcement box. It will always appear 1 font size larger than other text until you separate them with a Paragraph Tag.

<P> Using your "angle bracket" keys. This command starts a new paragraph and will make a "double-space" between this line and the previous line.

In in Conclusion:

And so quite simply, I would always live the header "2021 Spring Baseball Announcements:" in place. Start each new announcement with <P>, the date, and then text. Each new thought, requiring a new line, can begin with <BR>.

You will learn quickly. Try Using a <B> to Boldface Text, and then turn it "off" with </B> at the end of the text when you do not wish to continue in Bold text.

Future edits can be made accordingly.
